

Souvenirs damour: Love and the mnemotechnic of alterity (Axis Series)

Imagine this for yourself, someone comes to you, a little familiar perhaps though not entirely so, and, out of the blue, asks or rather demands of you: - tell me about love. How do you respond? Do you tell a story, do you remark this is impossible, or do you suggest the possibility of a correspondence between yourself and this unexpected other? Speaking of phantasms then, of the demands of memory, the call of mnemosyne, and what the other causes to appear, we seek to orientate ourselves around the contours of the impossible, that which we call love, remaining as a third and invisible presence which seeks to record and give form to an imagined dialogue.
